MID URGES RETURNING MILITARY PERSONNEL TO REVIEW INSURANCE OPTIONS

Service Personnel Should Ensure They, Their Families Maintain the Right Coverage for Any Posting

Jackson, MS — As thousands of military personnel prepare to return from deployments in Iraq and Afghanistan in the coming months, they should review their insurance coverage to make certain that they and their families stay protected no matter where they are, according to Mike Chaney, Mississippi Commissioner of Insurance

“With frequent moves and changes in deployment status, members of the armed services face a unique situation when it comes to insurance,” Chaney said. “By staying on top of their insurance options, military personnel can make sure that they have the right coverage for any situation, whether they are in Kabul, Afghanistan; Kirkuk, Iraq; or Jackson, Mississippi.”

While broad insurance information can be found on the Mississippi Insurance Department (MID) website, the department offers the following sample of tips for those in the armed services to help with selecting their insurance coverage.

Auto Insurance

- If you will be deployed for an extended period of time and no one will be driving your vehicle, you may be able to suspend some of your auto insurance coverage to save on premium payments. Not all states or insurance companies allow for coverage to be suspended. Go to the MID Web site at www.mid.state.ms.us for more information.
- If you want to suspend auto coverage, contact your agent and state insurance department for the specific laws and policy limitations applicable in your state. You may want to ask whether the following types of coverage can be suspended while you are deployed: liability, collision, uninsured/underinsured motorist, medical payments and personal injury protection (PIP).
- Pursuant to Miss. Code Ann. §75-24-5 – An insurance company may not issue a rate increase when reinstating an automobile policy if the insured was called to active military service and cancelled or non-renewed the policy due to activation. The vehicle must not have been used during the time of cancellation/non-renewal for this provision to apply.

- In states that mandate automobile insurance coverage, you may need to file an affidavit of non-use with your state's department of motor vehicles to avoid being fined for failure to maintain insurance.

Homeowners Insurance

- Many homeowners' policies have a "vacancy clause" that may be activated if you are deployed for an extended period of time and your family has moved to a new location. Such policies might not pay claims if your house is vacant for 60 days or more. Consult your insurance company to learn how it defines "vacancy" and whether the claims for a vacant house will be paid.
- To avoid future disputes, review your policy with your agent before you leave for military duty. Also, make sure your policy limits are sufficient to cover your home and your personal property at today's costs. Consider increasing your coverage if you have made additions or improvements to your property.

Health Insurance

- Many reservists and National Guard members have health coverage for themselves and their families through an employer-sponsored health plan. Some may wish to continue that coverage, particularly for their dependents, during their active duty period. Talk with your benefits administrator to learn what will happen with your health coverage when called to active duty.
- If you are on active duty for more than 30 days, you and your dependents should be covered by military health care. Dependents have medical and dental services provided through uniformed services facilities subject to availability and are eligible for health benefits from civilian sources through the federally funded TRICARE program, the triple option benefit plan available for military families, formerly known as CHAMPUS (Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services).
- Your right to continue health coverage under an employment-based group health plan is covered by federal laws. The Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act (COBRA) provides health coverage continuation rights to employees and their families after an event such as reduction in employment hours. The Uniformed Services Employment and Reemployment Rights Act of 1994 (USERRA) is intended to minimize the disadvantages that occur when a person needs to be absent from civilian employment to serve in the uniformed services. Both COBRA and USERRA generally allow individuals called for active duty to continue coverage for themselves and their dependents under an employment-based group health plan for up to 24 months.
- Any person who is called to active military duty, upon deactivation shall have their health insurance coverage resumed, including any pre-existing condition covered, to that person and his or her dependents pursuant to the provisions of Miss. Code Ann. §83-5-91.

Life Insurance

- Anyone who sells life insurance at military installations is required to obtain permission from the Department of Defense to be an authorized solicitor. When dealing with an agent, ask to see permits and licenses to be sure you are dealing with a legitimate agent.
- Currently, many private insurance carriers do not offer coverage for Acts of War. Military personnel are provided some death benefits, but may purchase a limited amount of additional coverage through the Service members' Group Life Insurance (SGLI), a low-cost group life insurance program that includes benefits for death resulting from Acts of War. Be sure you understand the benefits paid by the policy if you were to die in a war zone or were to be killed through an act of war. If you purchase an individual military-focused policy, check with your agent to make sure it does not duplicate coverage for your family that could be obtained elsewhere.
- Service members can contact their Flight, Payroll or Finance Office for further details on premium payment and refund issues. Service members and their beneficiaries should contact the Office of Servicemembers' Group Life Insurance (OSGLI) for pending claims.
